Oil Shares in Philadelphia. The Philadelphia News, noticing the fluctuation in oil shares, remarks that there is a great want of confidence in regard to oil matters and oil stocks, and there are very many who express the be-lief that the business has "had its day,"

TURBDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1805

or, to use a vulgarism, is "played out."
We see no reason, says the News see no reason, says the News, for these impressions; or rather, none for absolute discouragement. It is quite true that we shall never witness a repetition of the "furore" which characterized our city in this connection twelve months back but then we must romember that the conm of things then existing was unnatural, and altogether the result of un issune excitoment on the subject, which had its origin from the extraordinary success that a few individuals had met with in making Office. noney out of oil lands, the said individuals having conducted themselves afterwards like so many fools.

as naving conducted research as a marks like so many fools.

If we take the stock list and analyze it so far as oil shares are concerned, it will be found that after all they are bringing parhaps quite as much as they cost originally. Take for instance a company with a nominal capital of five hundred thousand dollars, and a hundred thousand shares of stock to represent it. The stock, or a portion of it, was subscribed for perhaps at two dollars a share, but the land on which it was based did not in all probability cost more than fifty thousand dollars. The actual par value of the stock then was lifty cents per share instead of five dollars, nonminally stated. That stock, we will undertake to say, is bringing more money than that to-day, and it is therefore doing as well as iteading, which sells at 53 to 54. Now it occurs to us that the best thing that those who are officers and stockholders.

as well as Reading, which sells it 53 to 54.

Now it occurs to us that the best thing that those who are officers and stockholders of oil companies can do is to look the subject fairly and squarely in the fore, and ask themselves why they are languing a phantom in their embrace. Every oil company, in existence that has lands in fee in the oil district, if its affairs are properly conducted, can within a reasonable time make a dividend on its stock at a fair and legitimate valuation, and those that are based on lands out of the known oil district will necessarily go down, as they should if overy corporation in the city that horisated one thousand shares of stock would at once conclude that it is best to be honest and call things by their right mames, we think the business could and would be very seen improved. Let the stockholders of such companies be called together, and instead of a man flattering himself that he is worth five thousand shares of stock of the mortified by a thousand shares of stock of the mortified to admit the fact that he is worth but two thousand, and surrender to the company, for cancellation one-half of hie stock, taking a now certificate of the par value of the party after of the party after of the company, and those who really desire to invest in property of that kind would be relieved of fifty thousand shares of that company, and those who really desire to invest in property of that kind would be inspired with a confidence that they have not possessed since the bursting of the bubble, when men, women and children were running mad on the subject of oil and oil stecks. If this policy were adopted we would not see the "Skylocks" and the "thugs" of the stock beard slaughtering rane's of the stock of the party of the stock of the party of the stock of the party the subject of oil and oil stecks. If this policy were adopted we would not see the 'Shylocks' and the 'thugs' of the stock board slaughtering men's property to the extent they now do by soling short, and the business would nt once, or very soon, assume such a legitimate position not occumumal the respect of the community, which it certainly does not do now. As we have frequently had occasion to say before in this column, we are deating too much infections, and of all others the oil companies have been the most extravagant.—

Men have lugged to their hearts the helief that they had grown comparatively rich by Men have lagged to their hearts the belief that they had grown comparatively rich by investing a thousand or two of dollars in oil shares that cost them as "originals" parhaps fifty cents or less per share. They had no right to indulge such expectations, and were lured to them by the extravagant promises and misrepresentations of those, who were lower down on the "ground floor" than themselves. They must abandon their old dreams, and becoming practical, make up their minds to think and not us, other men do in different relations of life. If they do this they will not only advance their own prospects of profit, but "they will do much towards the promotion of what is even now one of the most im-they will do much towards the promotion of what is even now one of the mo.t important interests of our Stitle.

We hope as soon as the weather gets cooler, when men can think about business with some degree of deliberation, to see such a movement as we have suggested innignated. It is very true that in the present inflated condition of the country, a share of stock of any kind ought to be counted for more than it would with a gold basis as a circulating medium, but that does not after the practical or positive value of an article; besides which, the inflation of oil stocks—referring to their nominal value—is as far above the inflation of other stocks as the heavens are above the carth.
